

GOING SOLO

by D.I. Lema & Bea Goode

1

You are a pricing actuary in a team of non-actuaries. You are concerned that the team doesn't understand the complexities of your work and the duties you owe to your profession.

2

You sometimes find it difficult to access independent peer review, particularly when there is pressure from underwriters to quickly alter a price.

3

You are concerned that you might feel under pressure to submit work that could have significant financial impact without having time or access for independent peer review.

4

How can you address your concerns? If you don't have your work reviewed, could you be in breach of APS X2? What could your employer do to assist? What might you do if your employer does not provide appropriate assistance?
